In 2019, I embarked on a life-changing journey to circumnavigate Africa by public transport. For 10 months, I traveled through 26 countries, covering over 50,000 kilometers by bus, train, ferry, and even donkey cart. It was an adventure of a lifetime, filled with incredible experiences, unexpected encounters, and a deep immersion into the diverse cultures of Africa.

In my book, Encircle Africa, I share my story of this epic journey, offering a unique perspective on the beauty, challenges, and rewards of traveling Africa by public transport. Through vivid descriptions and captivating anecdotes, I transport readers to the bustling streets of Cairo, the vibrant markets of Marrakech, the stunning landscapes of the Serengeti, and the remote villages of the Sahara.

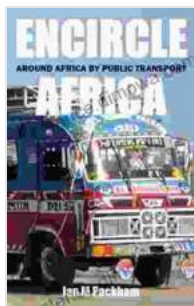

Encircle Africa is not just a travelogue; it is also a celebration of the human spirit. Throughout my journey, I met countless people who welcomed me with open arms, shared their stories, and helped me navigate the challenges of traveling by public transport. From the friendly bus drivers who went out of their way to assist me to the resourceful locals who helped me find affordable accommodation, I was constantly amazed by the kindness and generosity of the African people.

Traveling by public transport in Africa is not for the faint of heart. It can be slow, uncomfortable, and unpredictable. But it is also an incredibly rewarding way to experience the continent. By embracing the challenges and immersing yourself in the local culture, you will gain a deeper understanding of Africa and its people. In Encircle Africa, I provide practical tips and advice for those who are considering a similar journey, covering everything from budgeting to safety to dealing with language barriers.

Whether you are an armchair traveler or an aspiring adventurer, Encircle Africa will inspire you with its tales of off-the-beaten-path adventures, cultural encounters, and the transformative power of travel. Join me on this extraordinary journey and discover the real Africa, beyond the tourist trail.
